

ABOUT THE ONTARIO HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Ontario Historical Society (OHS), founded in 1888, is a non-profit corporation and registered charity. This non-government group brings together people of all ages, walks of life and all cultural backgrounds who are interested in preserving the many aspects of Ontario's history.

The OHS provides a forum for individuals, organizations and institutions to exchange ideas, research and experiences related to the province, including artifacts, architecture, folklore, social history, archives and archaeology.

Workshops & Training

OHS-led workshops offer members the opportunity to increase their knowledge and skills pertaining to a wide variety of heritage topics. You'll meet people with similar interests and have fun while learning.

Educational Programs

OHS educational programs provide valuable information and resources for heritage organizations. Programs can be tailored to meet your specific needs.

OHS Bulletin

Published five times a year, this entertaining and informative newsletter covers upcoming events and exhibits, as well as heritage news and information about issues affecting Ontario's heritage community.

Ontario History Journal

This scholarly journal focuses on Ontario's history and is published twice a year. It is available for an additional subscription fee with a special reduced fee for members.

Other publications

The OHS has published the largest single collection of materials about Ontario's history and continues to produce both books and booklets of interest to people of all ages. Visit their website for current listings.

Cemetery Defense

The OHS works to protect the vulnerable and valuable heritage of our cemeteries and burial places. Donations can be made to the Cemetery Defense Fund. Charitable tax receipts are issued for all contributions.

Museums Committee

This committee, founded in 1953, is the oldest organization in Ontario dedicated to supporting museum workers by providing training, publications and support services.

Honours and Awards

Awards are presented annually to individuals, organizations and institutions making outstanding contributions to preserving, researching, interpreting and writing about the history of the province.

Special Programs

In response to members' requests, special programs are developed including activities for those with special needs.
